What are some tips for students at CSUF?

Put yourself out there. As cliché as this might sound it can’t hurt to try. As young adult’s college is a place where we are all finding ourselves, and in this journey we need to make mistakes so we can learn and improve for the future. In other words, “Just Do It!”

How has CHHD prepared you for the future?

The College of Health and Human Development has helped since I started as a freshman in the dorms on campus. I have utilized the student success center for many instances. I enjoy the atmosphere the center provides.

What steps are you taking to graduate on time?

To graduate on time, I am planning to excel in my classes the first around, and I also plan to take summer classes.

TITAN PRIDE

Erika is a third year Communication major with an emphasis in Public Relations/African American Studies. Her long term goal is to obtain a teaching credential, and possibly continuing on with school. She is the secretary for the organization Afro-Ethic Student Association. This organization contributes authenticity for the black community focusing on social justice, cultivating unity, and highlighting the black experience.

What are some benefits of being involved?

As a freshman I did not really know my way around campus so being exposed to a club for my second year helped me start branding myself. The club allowed me to feel a part of something greater.

“The greatness of a (wo) man is not how much wealth he acquires, but in his integrity and his ability to affect those around him.”
