How has the College of Health and Human Development prepared you for your future?

The Student Success Center has helped me tremendously in my college career. It has created an environment that allows me to devote more time to my studies.

What steps are you taking to graduate on time?

I regularly make appointments with my major advisor. I also set time to study for my classes so that I don’t have to repeat a course.

What are some challenges you have faced? How did you overcome them?

A challenge I had my first semester in college was not feeling connected to the school and not having friends to hangout with. This led to me becoming what we call a “PCP” student. Basically this means I went from the parking lot to the classroom and then back to the parking lot. Becoming a peer mentor, and orientation leader, and now a student ambassador has really helped me change how I feel about the university.

What are some tips you have for students at CSUF?

Be proactive, it is sometimes difficult but strive to make it a habit. Talk to your professors. They want to see you succeed so take the time to visit their office hours. And finally, get involved.
