7	self-exploration, improved skills in communication, faculty/staff, students, education	Dec 13, 2008 6:17 AM
8	The professors were excellent! They made themselves available for questions and seemed to really want the best for students. I liked that the classes were small, so that I could feel free to ask questions and have a relationship with the professor. I also felt that the majority of the classes were so helpful in preparing me to work in the field. Any class with professor Cervantes was excellent. I learned so much. Even though he required a lot of reading, I learned so much. I also really liked my classes with Matt as he challenged students.	Dec 13, 2008 6:58 AM
9	the care and involvement of the professors	Dec 13, 2008 7:36 AM

13	High standards	Dec 13, 2008 7:39 PM
14	I valued the emphasis on self-reflection as a means of personal and professional growth and to learn to separate my issues from those of the client. The faculty's experience and knowledge made learning enjoyable and class always a worthwhile time.	Dec 13, 2008 11:00 PM
15	What I remember most fondly are the professors and their genuine interest in the students and the profession. I felt the professors were there for the students, and you could get as much out of the program that you put in. Some students coasted through with minimal effort, and others really applied themselves. Overall, I really enjoyed the program and feel it prepared me well for the field. Group counseling was great, being run as a group therapy sessions. I really learned a lot with that format.	Dec 14, 2008 4:14 AM
16	Cohort format	Dec 14, 2008 4:26 AM

18	The knowledge of the professors and their willingness to share that information; especially, Dr. Reed, Dr. Matt and Dr. Shepard. Each of these professors actually taught practical techniques in their class, more than the theoretical background.	Dec 14, 2008 6:36 PM
19	I really appreciate the professionalism, extensive knowledge, and dynamic styles of my professors. I feel proud to have graduated from CSUF and now realize how high the quality of my education was and is.	Dec 14, 2008 7:10 PM

26	Certain professors some to mind that really made an impact. They were: Jeffrey Kottler, Dr. Sayeddi, Dr. Shepard, Dr. Iyengar, and Dr. Smart.  Also, in the practicum courses, having to tape and transcribe sessions was an extremely valuable assignment. The research paper was very valuable as well, in that it laid the foundation for an appreciation and understanding of the what goes into research and how knowledge is created.	Dec 16, 2008 1:08 AM

6. Looking back, what changes would you suggest in the classes/degree

Response Text
1	Raise the minimum admission requirements - be more selective*	Dec 12, 2008 9:01 PM
2	More continuity between 521 and 597--same teacher for both or a standard format.	Dec 12, 2008 11:11 PM
3	Save Career 502 for later and start with a more interesting class. I had serious doubt but continue with the program.	Dec 12, 2008 11:26 PM
4	Comment previously listed	Dec 13, 2008 2:53 AM
5	I was in a cohort program, so I would have preferred more choices with instructors. I liked most of the instructors I had, but still would like to have had more of a choice like the on-campus students.	Dec 13, 2008 6:09 AM
6	allow data collection for projects or allow more therapists to interview.	Dec 13, 2008 6:17 AM
7	When I took my law/ethics course I didn't really learn a lot from the class, as the professor spoke about many unrelated topics. When I went to study for my first licensing exam I felt that I had to teach myself and felt unprepared in this area.	Dec 13, 2008 6:58 AM
8	more therapeutic training (although it looks like addictions and child/adolescent counseling was added)	Dec 13, 2008 7:36 AM

6. Looking back, what changes would you suggest in the classes/degree

Response Text
9	Although we learned a lot of different theories and techniques, we often did not get the opportunity to see them in practice.	Dec 13, 2008 4:31 PM
10	add an add'l pre prac class (part 2)- so there is no lapse between when practicum begins, add electives (i.e. counseling the elderly, or addictions and interventions etc...).	Dec 13, 2008 6:26 PM
11	I understand the program has changed significantly since my departure, but I think it lacked rigor particularly related to theory. I also believe I would have benefitted from spending more time with clients before beginning an internship. Incidentally, I obtained an internship in a private practice and was there for a year before I decided to leave and stay home with my new son. I still intend to become licensed.	Dec 13, 2008 7:32 PM
12	Deeper work in the group classes and more available psch testing classes	Dec 13, 2008 7:39 PM
13	I would suggest making some classes more skill based and work on real life scenarios more.	Dec 13, 2008 11:00 PM
14	Overall, I was very satisfied with the program. Some changes have already been implemented, including eliminating Coun. 521. I think students should be challenged, and will rise to the demands of the professor/class. Picking a final project topic of the population I was working with was a great help to me in the field I am still currently working in. As much "real life" case examples, or other "real life/Real world" work and examples was the most helpful. Learning about how to set up a private practice would be helpful too. More focus on working with children/families and teens would be helpful. I feel most of my knowledge has come from "hands on experience" learning in the field. Part of practicum too. Anger management is a topic I feel was not covered in any class. However, it comes up a lot with clients.	Dec 14, 2008 4:14 AM
15	Allow students to express their opinions with out fear of being outcast.	Dec 14, 2008 4:26 AM
16	offer a counseling techniques class every semester of the program. It does not need to be a 3 hr class. Maybe a 1 hr class to provide more hands on training. Maybe could include watching tapes of Master therapists. I would also incorporate the Child abuse class as one of the required classes for graduation. Have the human inquiry and final project in the last 2 semesters and have the same group take it with the same professor.	Dec 14, 2008 5:08 PM
17	I could have benefit from a learning lab type of experience where instant feedback could have been provided by a trusted professor prior to going into a internship.	Dec 14, 2008 6:36 PM
18	I wish there were more classes/education geared towards community services versus private practice because as Interns this is the work that we primarily do. The process of becoming licensed can take a few years so I feel there is a disconnect between the very high quality education we get and the "real world" practice we need to provide. Our education is great if we went straight into private practice, but that's not always possible.	Dec 14, 2008 7:10 PM
19	-possibly starting practicum earlier, so we could learn as we go instead of waiting until the last thing. -additional courses in theory. one was not enough, I still don't feel comfortable with the different theories. -the family systems class I took with an adjunct professor was sub par. I would have much rather had a professor from our program teach that class.	Dec 15, 2008 5:21 AM

25	More technical training such as how to conceptualize and write detailed treatment plans for various diagnosis. One area that really needs to be addressed in graduate programs is the current situation with insurance and managed care. A class on how the system works, how to prepare clinical for the precertification and utilization review process would be extremely valuable.	Dec 16, 2008 1:08 AM
26	Perhaps linking career counseling with another class, I thought it was a waste of money to pay for a class on career counseling	Dec 16, 2008 4:41 AM
27	The only suggestion I would have would be that it would be helpful if class scheduling could be set up in such a way that it was easier for students to complete the program only taking evening classes.	Dec 16, 2008 6:19 AM
28	more practicum classes	Dec 16, 2008 12:45 PM
29	Merge Intro to Counseling and Career Counseling.	Dec 17, 2008 12:13 AM
30	I think students could be more accurately prepared for final project. I felt that it was more intense than it needed to be. I think I had more room/time than I thought to go more at my own pace (but definitely felt rushed). It's a tricky class because there is much to accomplish, but maybe having a panel of previous students to answer questions about final project; challenges, what they would have done differently, how to manage anxiety/stress during the process, etc... 31	The Career Counseling class could be made much more interesting.	Dec 17, 2008 5:36 AM
32	I would suggest that practicum/internship classes be integrated into a cohort style. Feedback is important in that class and I think it would be easier if it was with a group that had been through several internships together. I would have also liked to see human inquiry and final project to be more streamlined. It was difficult to have worked an entire semester in one way with human inquiry, then re-work through information for final project in another way.	Dec 18, 2008 6:31 AM
33	I would have loved to have an onsite counseling center that we could have done practicum at because I think it would have been good for the program as we as have been a great service to the community/	Dec 18, 2008 7:43 PM
34	Adding a branch for a PPS credential would be very helpful to students who realize during their practicum that they would like to work in schools.	Dec 19, 2008 5:07 PM
